ABSTRACT

The approximately 250 entries in this bibliography deal with the topic of women and literature and were drawn from a search of current periodicals and of recent books catalogued by the Library of Congress. The cited materials deal with women authors, with topics of interest to feminist scholars of literature, or with problems and issues in feminist criticism. Not all of the cited materials reflect a feminist perspective. A list of recent audiovisual materials catalogued by the Library of Congress is also included. (TJ)

WOMEN AND LITERATURE: A CURRENT AWARENESS BIBLIOGRAPHY OF MATERIALS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN'S STUDIES

Scope: The scope of this bibliography reflects an in-house search (Memorial Library - UW-Madison) of current periodical literature on the topic of women and literature. Generally speaking, we chose articles which dealt with woman authors, or with topics that might interest feminist scholars of literature. However, this is definitely not a search that culls articles written only from a feminist perspective. Some articles deal with problems and issues in feminist criticism. We have also used our files of recently cataloged material from the Library of Congress to remind you of recent titles of literary criticism, fiction and poetry by and about women. Undoubtedly many of the titles we have chosen may be familiar to you; often they may not reflect a strictly feminist viewpoint. Similarly, we have included a list of pertinent audio-visual materials that have come to our attention because the Library of Congress has recently cataloged these materials. Included in this bibliography, too, are special issues of periodicals devoted to a topic of interest to feminist scholars of literature.
